Joining a fraternity can be pretty scary right? Even more so if you are introverted or shy, like Clinton was, when he first pledged APhiO as part of Cheng term. Well.... NEVER FEAR, YOU'RE BIG IS HERE! Clinton credits his Big, Helen Van, in helping shed his timid ways: "Having a Big brought me out of my shell. I was really shy as a pledge and I wanted to be more outgoing". His Big also helped him foster one of our most important principles we hold as brothers of APhiO. You guessed it! FRIENDSHIP! Hanging out with his Big made him "feel more comfortable in this fraternity"; and through their encouragement, allowed him to meet new people and strengthen his relationship with his fellow brothers. As the Liao pledge class receive their Bigs, here's a little advice Clinton would like you to remember as you embark on this new and exciting journey with your Big Bro: "The best relationships that bloom are the ones that take mutual effort. Put in time, put in effort, and you will be rewarded!"

Meet pledge Michelle Nguyen! If Michelle discovered who her big was, the first thing she would say to her is "Hi Big, I'm your little! Let's go!" The ideal hang out for her would be going somewhere like Raku and talk while eating good food. If Michelle and her big would run together for excomm she would choose historians because they could really bond in friendship making scrapbooks and taking pictures while benefiting the chapter.

Hi Kmae! I'm so glad we went on the "LA" (la fitness) trip together last weekend! Even though it was only for one day, I felt like we bonded a lot! You are so cute and adorable and SUPER CRAZY - never have I laughed so hard in one day! I felt like my stomach was going to explode. Anyways, just wanted to say that this pkid loves her pmom!
